

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the local context in which a project is implemented. This includes identifying the key stakeholders, their interests, and the potential challenges that may arise. The second part of the paper describes the methodology used in the study, which involved a combination of qualitative and quantitative data collection methods. The third part of the paper presents the findings of the study, which show that there are significant differences in the way that different groups of people perceive and respond to the project. The final part of the paper discusses the implications of these findings for the design and implementation of the project.
