

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (2000) has set out a vision for mental health care in the UK, which is based on the principles of recovery, self-help, and community care. The vision is to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society.

One of the key challenges in mental health care is to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This is a challenge because many people with mental health problems are unable to access the services that they need due to a number of factors, including financial barriers, geographical barriers, and social barriers.

One of the ways in which mental health care can be improved is by ensuring that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This can be done by a number of ways, including providing financial support, providing geographical support, and providing social support.

One of the ways in which mental health care can be improved is by ensuring that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This can be done by a number of ways, including providing financial support, providing geographical support, and providing social support.

One of the ways in which mental health care can be improved is by ensuring that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This can be done by a number of ways, including providing financial support, providing geographical support, and providing social support.

One of the ways in which mental health care can be improved is by ensuring that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This can be done by a number of ways, including providing financial support, providing geographical support, and providing social support.

One of the ways in which mental health care can be improved is by ensuring that people with mental health problems are able to access the services that they need. This can be done by a number of ways, including providing financial support, providing geographical support, and providing social support.